

SOLUTIONS FOR FLEXIBLE WORKERS

Flexible workers are the epitome of whatever it takes to get the job done. They'll be found collaborating from their home office, shared office spaces, personal desk, and on-the-go. Providing them seamless transitions is essential.

FOR ORGANIZATIONS

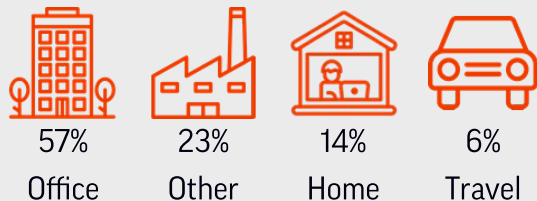

We can help you profile your organization to identify workforce communication needs.

A FLEXIBLE WORKER FEELS AS PRODUCTIVE AT HOME AS IN THE OFFICE

SPACES

Highly mobile in and out of the office. They're likely to be okay with un-assigned seating since they spend more time in conference rooms. Support for this group includes access to different video-enabled rooms and huddle spaces.

TYPE OF WORK

Transitions are the norm for this persona as they work between locations throughout the day. They tend to work creatively and like face-to-face engagement, but they also depend on multiple devices to communicate.

73% use a headset

47% report daily video usage

DEVICE USAGE

On average, Flexible Workers use 5.4 devices on a daily basis to get their work done. Primary devices used for calls include:

46%
Computer

21%
Smart
Phone

14%
Desk Phone

% Time spent

TOP PAIN POINTS

- Need to transition between locations and devices
- constant background noise due to changing environments
- Lag between audio / video due to poor connections

FUN FACTS

- When at the office, spends 24% of time moving from location to location
- Set up home office during COVID (62% made purchases)
- Expects to expend 2x more time working from home post-COVID
